INTRODUCTION

More than 2 million families and 9.1 million individuals in need turned to Catholic Charities for help in 1989. They received everything from a hot meal at a soup kitchen to a new family through adoption.

In addition to providing direct services such as counseling, food, housing, and emergency assistance, Catholic Charities agencies worked with and on behalf of people in need to tackle the root causes of social problems. These efforts include advocacy, public policy development and implementation, and community program development.

Whether in direct service or social action, the promotion of family life is a major theme underlying the efforts of Catholic Charities agencies. Many direct services, including counseling, shelter, food, and pregnancy and day-care services, help protect and enhance family life. Social action, such as advocacy on behalf of homeless people, pregnant teen-agers, victims of abuse, and people with AIDS, also seeks to maintain and support families.

Catholic Charities USA is the organization that unites the social service agencies operated by most Catholic dioceses in the United States. This network of more than 600 Catholic Charities agencies and institutions and several hundred thousand volunteers and staff members carries out the Catholic Church's commitment to human dignity by assisting people in need without regard to race, color, or religion.

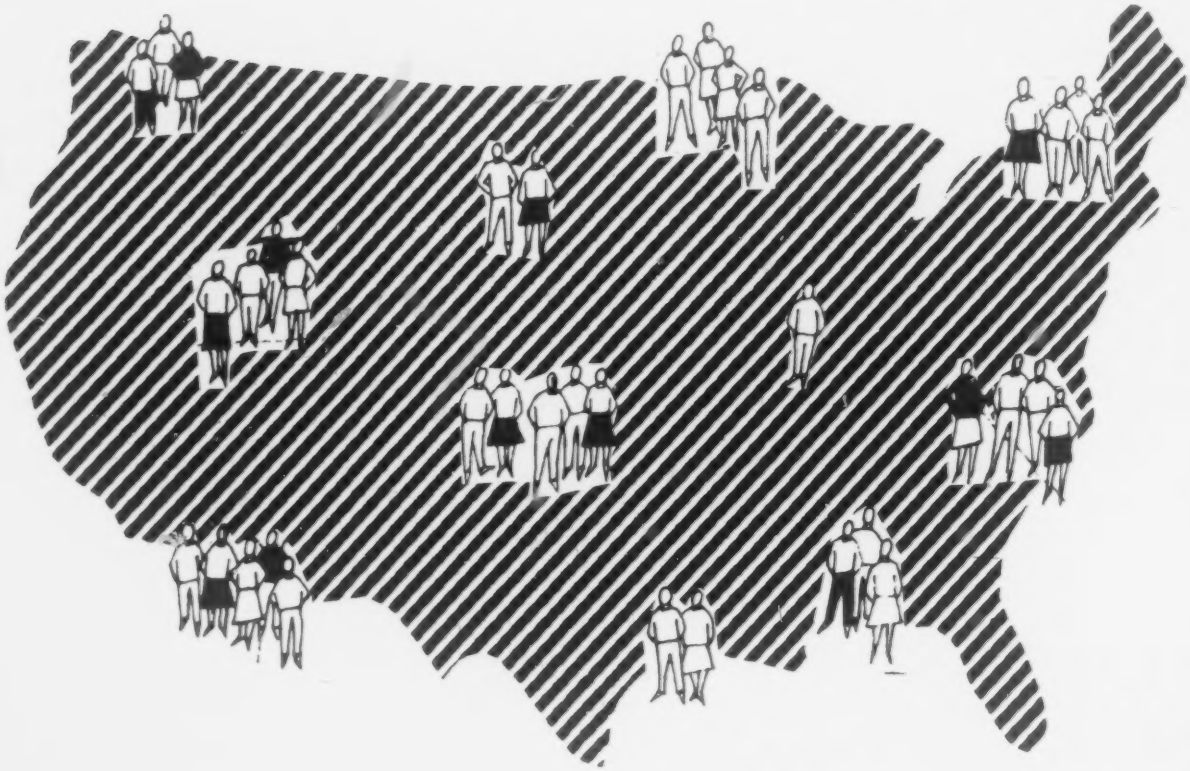
Each year, Catholic Charities USA surveys its member agencies and publishes the data to provide a national picture of its service and advocacy efforts. The data contained in this report are taken from the responses of 137 diocesan agency directors. This represents a response rate of 87% of all active diocesan agencies.



I. PERSONNEL

In 1989 over 200,000 people contributed their time and labor to Catholic Charities service and advocacy efforts. This includes 47,856 paid staff members, 139,348 volunteers, and 14,475 corporate and advisory board members.

Of the total paid staff, 67% are professional or paraprofessional service deliverers, 11% are in managerial positions, 12% provide secretarial and clerical services and 5% provide custodial/maintenance services. The remaining 5% are reported as "other".

Overall the percentage of paid staff who are minority is 33.6%. Approximately 16% of the managerial staff are minorities. Over one-fourth (28%) of the professional staff and 44% of the paraprofessional staff are minorities. Almost 30% of the clerical staff and 42% of the custodial staff are minority.

Two-thirds of the total paid staff are women (66%). Two-thirds (67%) of the service delivery staff are women. Over 60% of the office managers and 85% of the administrative assistants and executive secretaries are women. Over 80% of the clerical staff are women. One-third of the agencies report women as serving as executive directors.

In 1989 we asked the diocesan directors to report the educational backgrounds of their professional service and administrative staffs. Although the responses to these questions were lower than to other questions we can still comment on the pattern of findings. Over 60% of the program service staff and over 80% of the administrative staff are reported as having more than a high school education. Over 40% of the administrative staff and 20% of the professional service staff have masters or doctoral degrees, 27% of the professional service staff and 25% of the administrative staff hold bachelor degrees. Only 9% of the program service staff and 3% of the administrative staff have less than a high school degree.

The total number of volunteers in 1989 was 139,348. Of these 60% were agency volunteers and 40% were parish level volunteers. Over half (57%) of the volunteers have direct contact with clients and 51% are specially trained for their volunteer service. Of the total number of volunteers 13% are minority and 54% are women.

The agencies report a total of 7,302 corporate board members in 1989. Of these 10% are minority and 37% are women. In addition to the corporate board members the agencies report that 7,173 individuals served on advisory and/or professional review boards.

II. FINANCES

The total cash income reported by Catholic Charities agencies in 1989 was $1,333,898,580 while the total in-kind contributions were $31,279,667. These figures represent an increase of over 55% (close to half a billion dollars) from the previous year. It should be noted, however, that this increase seems to be due to more complete reporting of financial information. In past years, a number of agencies provided incomplete or no financial data, primarily because their fiscal years varied. During 1989 special efforts were made to collect complete financial information from all reporting agencies. Based on this more complete data, it is believed that the 1989 figures are more accurate than those of previous years.

As in previous years, the largest income source was government grants and contracts for services, comprising over half (54.5%) of the total income. This was followed by program service fees (14.5%). Income from Church sources (Catholic Charities appeal, fundraising, other contributions, and investment income) made up 11.5% of the total. Contributions from the United Way provided an added 6.5%. In addition, in-kind contributions were 2.2% of the total income reported. These Church-based in-kind contributions include salaries, space, food, clothing and items given to Catholic Charities agencies by local parishes and individuals.

Of the total expenditures in 1989, over 90% was allocated to direct program expenditures. This included $1,150,081,509 for program services and $57,738,544 for emergency financial assistance. In addition, 9% was spent on overhead and 0.7% on public relations and fundraising.

III. SOCIAL SERVICES

A. Overview

In 1989 Catholic Charities agencies provided services to 2.3 million children, 5.4 million adults, 1.3 million aging persons and 2.2 million families. The services include:

- Counseling Services
- Pregnancy Services
- Adoption Services
- Refugee/Immigration Services
- Education Services
- Socialization Services
- Food Services
- Emergency/Crisis Services
- Support Services
- Housing Services
- Out-of-Home Care Services

Table III.1 contains the data on the number of children, adults, aging persons who were recipients of services.

More than 6 million individuals and 1.3 million families received emergency/crisis and food services. These include shelters for homeless adults and families, shelters for those who are physically or sexually abused and shelters for runaway youth, as well as emergency financial, food, clothing, furniture and medical assistance. During 1989 Catholic Charities agencies sponsored or managed 545 emergency shelters; 133 of these are for families and 412 are for individuals. The total number of beds in these shelters is 6,753.

Almost 600,000 individuals and over 200,000 families were the recipients of counseling services. These include counseling for children, adolescents, adults, couples and families. The problems and issues focused on were alcohol and drug abuse, pregnancy, employment, housing and legal issues.

Refugee resettlement and immigration services such as family reunification, education, housing and health, legal and employment services were provided to 214,510 individuals and 52,416 families.

Over 130,000 individuals and 66,000 families received pregnancy and adoption services. A total of 3,794 adoptions were completed. Of these 961 were special needs and 482 were international adoptions. The types of pregnancy services include pre and post-natal care, housing and material assistance, pregnancy counseling, and continuing education. Some 64,505 pregnant women and 6,561 birth fathers received services from Catholic Charities agencies during 1989.

A total of 51,191 housing units for families, individuals and the elderly were sponsored or managed by Catholic Charities agencies during 1989. Some 76,252 individuals and 14,905 families received housing services.

Out-of-home care services such as foster care, group homes and residential care facilities were provided to 181,207 individuals and 19,492 families.

Preventive and support services such as family life education, values clarification education, drug and alcohol education, day care services for adults and children, respite and hospice care and socialization programs such as neighborhood and senior centers were provided to 1,807,578 individuals and 488,561 families.

Due to the increasing societal concerns around alcohol and drug abuse a number of questions related to substance abuse were added to the 1989 survey instrument. Over one-third (37%) of the agencies report having a specific treatment program for addictions. Of the 50 agencies which report having addiction programs the following is a listing of the specific services provided: assessment (44), professional group counseling (43), intervention (38), prevention (35), out-patient (34), community after care (20), residential after care (16) and in-patient detox (19).

B. Specific Populations Served

In the 1989 survey the respondents were asked to provide information on the populations served by their agencies.

Over 60% of the agencies report that they have specific programs for serving the following populations:

- Pregnant Teenagers
- Refugees/Immigrants/Migrants
- Troubled Adolescents
- People Suffering from Grief/Loss

Between 50% and 60% of the agencies report that they have specific programs for serving the following populations:

- Homeless Persons
- Persons with Mental Disabilities
- Unemployed Persons
- Victims of Family Violence
- Victims of Sexual Abuse

Between 30% and 50% of the agencies report that they have specific programs for serving the following populations:

- Persons with Physical Disabilities
- Women who have had Abortions
- People with Children
- People with AIDS
- Juvenile Offenders
- Undocumented Persons
- Victims of Elder Abuse
- Prisoners/Ex-offenders

C. New Social Service Initiatives in 1989

In the 1989 survey we included a number of open-ended questions in order to assess the extent to which Catholic Charities agencies were being responsive to the needs of people with special problems or issues. Over 70% of the agencies reported that they developed new social service programs during 1989. When asked to describe the populations for which these programs were developed the responses varied. Many respondents reported generic categories such as "children", "families", "elderly" etc. Others were more specific such as "counseling services for Amerasian youth" or "independent living program for children ready to be emancipated" etc.

In this section of the report we will briefly describe some of the new social service initiatives established by Catholic Charities agencies during 1989.

A dominant theme which emerges from the open ended responses is that of children and adolescents. In 1989 Catholic Charities agencies developed a number of social service programs designed to meet the special needs of this population. Agencies report developing programs for specific racial/ethnic groups. These include counseling and education programs for Amerasian youth, Hispanic youth and African American youth. Programs were also developed for children with special problems such as AIDS infants and cocaine babies. Programs for pregnant teenagers, runaways and chemically addicted adolescents were developed. Programs designed to enhance the life chances of children and adolescents in foster care or residential care such as preparation for independent living were developed.

Another theme which emerges from the open ended response is that of families. These include the development of family support and enrichment programs for refugee and immigrant families, for families who are providing care for the elderly and Alzheimer victims, for families who are victims of disasters (e.g. earthquakes, hurricanes, etc.) and for families who are victims of disease (e.g. AIDS).

Catholic Charities commitment to the poor, the vulnerable and the marginalized is witnessed in the development of services for the homeless, the mentally and physically disabled, and the unemployed.

D. Summary of Social Service Activities

In 1989, over 9 million individuals and 2 million families were touched by the work of Catholic Charities. The agencies report providing services which span the spectrum of need. These include emergency/crisis services, prevention and support services and direct services. In providing social services Catholic Charities agencies are witnessing to the dignity of the individual and the primacy of the family in the development of a just society.

IV. SOCIAL ACTION

A. Humanizing and Transforming the Social Order

In past years the survey instrument requested the agency directors to read a list of issues related to legislative action and community organization and to check those issues which the agency was involved in during the reporting year. The 1989 survey instrument provided the respondents with open-ended questions for each of these categories. The respondents were asked to write in the issues in which their agencies were involved. The open-ended responses, although more difficult to analyze, provide for the listing of more innovative and more specific involvement on behalf of Catholic Charities agencies.

1. Legislative Action

Catholic Charities agencies report being involved in a wide variety of issues related to legislative action. The most frequent categories reported were:

- Housing/Homelessness
- Economic Issues
- Pro-Life
- Child Care
- Family Life

In the area of housing/homelessness the agencies report being involved in issues related to increasing the number of low and moderate income housing units, developing emergency shelters for homeless individuals and families, and developing housing/hospices for persons with AIDS.

The economic issues included issues related to unemployment and fair employment, tax reform and the funding of social service programs in general.

The pro-life issues included mainly anti-abortion and anti-capital punishment efforts.

Child care issues evolved around day care programs, child nutrition programs and adoption and foster care issues.

The family life issues focused on issues related to day care for the elderly, medical insurance issues, income subsidies for poor families and family tax credits.

Other issues in the area of legislative action included farm and agricultural issues, health care issues, foreign policy issues and refugee/immigration issues.

2. Community Organization

In the area of community organization the major issues addressed by the reporting agencies were:

- Housing/Homelessness
- Economic Issues
- AIDS
- Food/Hunger
- Aging

The agencies report being involved in community organization efforts to increase the number of housing units, to rebuild houses in poor neighborhoods and to maintain rent controls in some areas. The agencies also report being involved in community organization efforts to provide housing/hospices for persons with AIDS.

Community organization efforts related to economic issues included increasing welfare benefits, fair wages and disaster relief.

Community organization efforts with and on behalf of persons with AIDS included housing issues, employment issues, health care issues and general civil rights issues.

Community organization efforts also focused on issues related to food and hunger. These included the development of food banks and food cooperatives and issues related to family farms and agriculture.

Issues related to the elderly included community-based respite care, transportation, housing and health care.

Other community organization efforts focused on drug-use, youth violence, utility costs and environmental issues.

B. Influencing Public Policy

In 1989 80% of the agencies report that they were involved in influencing public policy development and/or implementation at the local, state or national level. Over half of the agencies report that they participated on governmental commissions or committees at the local level (60%) and state level (50%). Only 14% report that they participated on governmental commissions or committees at the national level. Two-thirds of the agencies report that they offered consultation to public officials at the local (68%) and state level (66%). Over one-third (39%) report that they offered consultation to public officials at the national level. Over 40% report that they participated in the development or revision of regulations at the local level (42%), over half at the state level (57%) and 15% at the national level. Over three-fourths report participating on coalitions with other social service agencies at the local level (79%), 80% at the state level and 39% at the national level.

C. Community Program Development

In 1989 one fourth of the agencies report that they were involved in developing community programs. These programs include: housing corporations (24%), cooperative organizations (17%), neighborhood parish organizations (12%), health care centers (11%), senior citizen centers (7%) and economic development corporations (6%). One-third of the agencies report that they were involved in community programs developed prior to 1989. These programs were: cooperative organizations (32%), housing corporations (27%), senior citizen centers (20%), neighborhood parish organizations (15%), health care centers (13%) and economic development corporations (9%).

D. Advocacy Efforts

In 1989 Catholic Charities agencies report being involved in advocacy efforts on behalf of a large number of vulnerable and/or disenfranchised people. Over half of the agencies report advocacy efforts on behalf of:

- Homeless Persons
- People with AIDS
- Refugees/Immigrants/Migrants

Over 40% of the agencies report advocacy efforts on behalf of:

- Pregnant Teenagers
- People with Addictions
- Persons with Physical Disabilities
- Persons with Mental Disabilities
- Unemployed Persons
- Troubled Adolescents
- Victims of Family Violence

V. PARISH SOCIAL MINISTRY

In 1989, 67 diocesan agencies or 49% of all reporting agencies have a Parish Social Ministry Program. These 67 agencies report that they sponsor Parish Social Ministry in 3,103 parishes. Another 66 agencies report that Parish Social Ministry is occurring in 2,227 parishes not affiliated with Catholic Charities. Overall the agencies report that Parish Social Ministry is occurring in 5,330 parishes.

All of the agencies which report having Parish Social Ministry report that their programs involve both direct service and social action.

Of the 67 diocesan agencies who have Parish Social Ministry, 63% report that they have a full time director assigned to the program and 34% report that they have a part-time director assigned to the program. Thirty-four agencies report that they have a total of 202 full-time staff assigned to parish social ministry and 52 agencies report that they have 202 part-time staff assigned to Parish Social Ministry. In addition the agencies report a total of 54,455 parish level volunteers.

The services provided in a parish setting by over one-fourth of the reporting agencies are:

- Counseling
- Education
- Emergency/Crisis
- Refugee/Immigration
- Support

The issues addressed in a parish setting include:

- Social Awareness/Social Justice Issues
- Child Abuse/Family Violence
- Pro-Life Issues
- Support for Caregivers
- Substance Abuse
